Information Technology Act, 2000

Information Technology (IT) Act, 2000

User Query :

I ended a relationship several months ago. Since then, my former partner has been repeatedly calling me from different numbers, sending unwanted WhatsApp messages and waiting outside my office. I have clearly asked the person not to contact or follow me, but the behaviour continues. The person also monitors my social-media posts and sometimes appears at locations shortly after I post about them. What legal provisions may apply?

INTERPRETATION & LEGAL ANALYSIS

AI-generated legal interpretation

- 1 No current IT Act offence clearly covers the repeated unwanted contact and following as described. The former offensive-messages provision struck down by the Supreme Court in Shreya Singhal must not be used.

✓ STRENGTHS & RIGHTS

- 1 The answer avoids forcing a cybercrime provision simply because WhatsApp/social media are involved.

✗ RISKS & OBLIGATIONS

- 1 Other cybercrime provisions require additional elements such as personation, private-area imagery or obscene material that are not stated here.

PROCEDURAL NOTES & COMPLIANCE STEPS

Actionable steps for compliance and grievance redressal

COMPLIANCE STEPS

1. Preserve messages/call logs as evidence even though the substantive offence is principally under BNS.
